

Canada Brochure Requirements:

You will be using Microsoft Publisher to make an informational brochure about your province. You need to choose an informational brochure format, and use custom colors to match the provincial flag. (Format > Color Scheme.) You will be doing your best to provide a both informational and attractive look at your province so people will want to visit and spend their money there.

Section 1: (The far right panel of the first page.)

- Name of the province
- An attractive picture of something related to the province
- A slogan for the province, (make one up if you can't find one...the slogan needs to be related to the province, though)
- A URL for the province's home page

Section 2: (The far left panel of the second page, or Main Inside Heading panel.)

- A catchy title that makes the reader want to read on
- Another related picture of a place in your province
- A caption under the picture that briefly describes it
- 3 paragraphs that sell your province; remember, you want tourists to come and spend their money there, have an awesome time and come back and do it again. Talk about how they will do this here.

Section 3: (The middle panel of the second page, or Secondary Heading panel.)

- Two detailed paragraphs about fun, educational, and/or meaningful things to do/places to go in your province. The text box is continued onto the 4th section in case you run out of room.
- A picture related to one of these things, (preferably the most fun, educational, or meaningful one!)

Section 4: (The far right panel of the second page. Note: you will have to delete some objects on this panel to make room for your information.)

- Its nickname and where the nickname came from. (You can make this up if you can't find it.)
- Date it became a province
- A map of the province showing the capital, major cities, rivers, lakes, and large bodies of water, major land features, and what is to be found on its four borders. (An acceptable map can be found in WorldBook Online.)
- A picture of the provincial flag and coat of arms and an explanation of what the colors and symbols stand for.
- Population
- Major Language(s)

Sections 5 & 6: (Far left panel of the first page, or back panel heading section and middle panel of first page.)

- Do a report on one of the additional subjects on your handout or a teacher approved subject of your choice. This report should take up two full panels. A good place to look for ideas would be the history section of the WorldBook Online article about your province, or on your province's home page. You will probably want to get additional information from other sources to make your report more interesting and educational. You will have to delete some objects on the middle panel and create a text box that links it to the text box in the left panel. To do this, click the text frame tool, (looks like a capital A), and click and drag a text box in the center section. Click on the text frame in the left section to select it. Click the Connect Text Frames tool, (looks like a 3 link chain near the right end of your standard toolbar). Your cursor will then look like a pitcher. Click on the text frame you made in the middle section. This will allow text to "pour" from one text frame into the other.
- Include 1-2 related pictures.
